

Scottish COVID-19 Inquiry

Restriction Order 1 – Health and Social Care

Version 3 in force from 6 June 2024

Introduction

1. The aim of the Scottish COVID-19 Inquiry is to establish the facts of, and learn lessons from, the strategic responses to the COVID-19 pandemic in Scotland¹. For the purposes of its initial hearings, the Inquiry has grouped its terms of reference into the following broad themes: health and social care; education and young people; and finance, business and welfare.
2. The Chair of the Inquiry may impose restrictions on the disclosure or publication of any evidence or documents given, produced or provided to the Inquiry². Any restrictions are specified in an order (a “restriction order”) made by the Chair during the course of the Inquiry. A restriction order may be issued where the Chair considers it to be conducive to the Inquiry fulfilling its terms of reference or to be necessary in the public interest, having regard to:
 - 2.1 the extent to which any restriction on attendance, disclosure or publication might inhibit the allaying of public concern;
 - 2.2 any risk of harm or damage that could be avoided or reduced by any such restriction;
 - 2.3 any conditions as to confidentiality subject to which a person acquired information that is to be given, or has been given, to the inquiry; and
 - 2.4 the extent to which not imposing any particular restriction would be likely to cause delay or to impair the efficiency or effectiveness of the inquiry, or otherwise to result in additional cost (whether to public funds or to witnesses or others).³

4. Evidence can be obtained by the Inquiry from people and organisations in the following ways:

 - 4.3 Provision of documents
5. The Chair is mindful of the sensitive and/or personal nature of many aspects of such evidence and documents, to the interests of certain persons and organisations that may be identified by such evidence and/or documents and to the risk of harm and/or damage being occasioned to them.
